Ethical Decision-Making: An Introductory Workshop for Psychologists

Ethical Decision-Making Introductory Workshop

This workshop is designed for those Psychologists who have not had formal coursework in Ethics and/or those desiring a refresher on the process of ethical decision-making.

The workshop will be divided into two parts.

Part I will be comprised of a review the 10-step Ethical Decision Making-Process as outlined in the Canadian Code of Ethics for Psychologists, 3rd Edition. Workshop participants will then apply the decision-making process to ethical dilemmas.

Part II of the workshop will focus on discussion of ethical dilemmas encountered by the workshop participants.

Potential topics for discussion include:

- record keeping
- gaining informed consent for children with estranged parents.
- Release of confidential information (legal requests, insurance provider requests, hospital charts, etc.)

Workshop participants are encouraged to forward topics for discussion to: congruenceinc@eastlink.ca

Workshop participants are each asked to bring a copy of the Canadian Code of Ethics for Psychologists, 3rd Edition to the workshop. The Code is available in pdf format on the APNS website at: <http://www.apns.ca/general.html>

Dr. Elizabeth (Liz) Pace, R. Psych. (NS) provides counselling and assessment services in private practice. Prior to returning to university to obtain her Ph.D., Dr. Pace worked with adolescents as both a teacher and counsellor.

As a psychologist, she has furthered both her counselling and assessment experience with this age group, as well as broadened her practice to include adults and families. In addition, she has experience working with adolescents in secure-care facilities.

Dr. Pace has worked with federally incarcerated women and has therapeutic experience in the areas of pain management and rehabilitation psychology. She continues to work as an educator at the University of New Brunswick, where she is a Graduate School Teaching Associate in the Department of Education.
